Competition encourages us to do better, can improve products and possibly our way of life, and often leads to great discoveries, but there is a dark side. The need to be first and best often keeps individuals, groups, and even nations from sharing wisdom, knowledge, and experience for the benefit of all.

So much could be accomplished if each of us was humble enough to admit we cannot possibly know and do everything alone. Too often the ego is more important than the good of the whole. Wise men share their experience and acknowledge the contributions of others and build on the combination. Only fools think attention is more important than achievement.

There will be an Open House reception to bid farewell to Mildred Wixom Saturday, Jan. 30, from 2 to 4 p.m. in the North Cohocton United Methodist Church. Friends are invited to come and wish her luck as she gets ready for her move to Wayland.

Brownie Troop 720 ended 1987 with caroling at the Wayland Community Residence where they were treated to homemade cookies followed by their own party at the Little House. They thank Debbie Teed and Noreen Wood for their help. This month they are working on sit-ups and preparing for a Girl Scout Week display at the Wayland Library and in February they will be taking orders for magazine subscriptions to earn money to go to Darien Lake.

Friends Unlimited will have a pot luck dinner on the 27th. Bring a dish to pass and own table service. Call 728-2198 for more information about the group for singles whose motto is "there are no strangers here, only friends we haven't met."

The WCS high school art program will be sending works by Brian Essler, Randy Holmes, Tom Fairbrother, Heidi Henning, Rob Bondgren, Heather Bondgren, Tammy Emmoms, Amy Gardner, Donna Williams and Anna D. to the Regional School Art Competition at the Arnold Art Museum in Elmira where they will be judged by professional artists selected by the museum. WCS students have been outstanding in the past and we wish this group of students the same success.

The show opens Feb. 6 and continues through the 28th and is open regular museum hours of 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 1 to 5 p.m. on Sunday. Many award-winning Wayland artists have gone on to national competition as well as personal and professional success and the teachers have been acknowledged as well.

Blessing of babies and small children will be held at St. Joseph's Church Sunday, Feb. 7, at 3 p.m. This special service will be followed by refreshments and balloons in the school hall.

The James Stanley Band in concert at WCS Jan. 29 will be fun event for your entire family so make sure you have the date on the calendar! The proceeds will benefit the sixth grade trip to Washington, D.C.

Rafael Gonzales has been traveling to Danville, Mt. Morris, and Avon where he has been picking up used eyeglasses from members of the Lions Clubs in those towns as assistant sight conservation chairman. If you have used eyeglasses or know someone who does, contact him and they will be put to good use.

Catholics of all ages who would like to share their talents and skills to help make the world a better place may wish to give a summer or maybe a year or more to service in one of the 125 lay mission programs sponsored by the Diocesan office by calling the International Liaison of Lay Volunteers in Mission at 202-529-1100 or by writing to them for more information in care of P.O. Box 29149-4121 Harewood Rd., N.E. Washington, D.C. 20017.

"Better Homes and Gardens Blue Ribbon Bazaar Crafts" book is now on the shelves of Wayland Free Library. There are pages filled with practical information to make every bazaar run smoothly and profitably for your community service group, holiday sale, or craft fund-raising event. There are delightful and inexpensive projects you and your fellow crafters will enjoy making and shoppers will find irresistible.

The Animal Rescue Network of Livingston County is not only looking for new members but needs volunteer help to ready small buildings for the influx of animals in the spring. If you are an animal lover and are willing to share a skill or can volunteer tools, time or a truck, call 468-3426. Electricians, carpenters, masons, plumbers and a good sign painter are needed.

Patricia Zigenfus shared this bit of good sense from a 1960 Girl Scout book with her Brownies this month: Use it up, wear it out, make it do, or do without! Good advice for the throw-away generation.

Perkinsville News

Fire destroyed the home of Andy and Rena Pike and their two children late Thursday evening. Luckily they all escaped their trailer home located on Chapel St. here in Perkinsville but only with the night clothes on their backs.

Sacred Heart Church has given them shelter in the former convent until they decide on permanent arrangements. Sufficient amount of contributions of clothing and food from neighbors came in immediately.

The Social Ministry Committee of Sacred Heart Church is forming a fund for the Pike family to help them replace their household furnishings. Contributions may be sent to Sacred Heart Church Pike Fund.

Why does it usually take a tragedy to make us aware of our blessings? We are so fortunate to have the excellent volunteer fire departments we do have in this area of small towns.

The volunteer firemen come from a variety of occupations but join in one united goal to fight fire and save lives. They often put their own lives in danger.

The men donate many hours a month practicing fire drills, testing old equipment and new equipment and training new volunteers.

When they are exhausted and frustrated from handling frozen water hoses and are cold, the Auxiliary girls are near by to encourage and help to thaw them, serving hot coffee and sandwiches to help restore their energy.

Liz Conrad, president of the Perkinsville Auxiliary, reports the first meeting of the new year will be Monday, Jan. 26, at 8 o'clock. The public is invited to attend to hear a guest speaker from Fairport talk on "Fire Safety in the Home." All are welcome.

Clyde and Mary Parsons attended graduation ceremonies at Mansfield University Jan. 9. Their daughter, Anne, was among the graduates. She will be living in Williamsport, Pa., looking for employment there.

Susan Didas and Michael Flaitz returned to classes at Fredonia State College last week after the holiday break. Mark Didas returned to his classes at Syracuse University last weekend.

A meeting was held Monday evening in the Wayland Legion to try and form a Zoning Committee for the Town of Wayland. Watch your papers for further notices.

Nutrition Council Slates Session

The Steuben County Nutrition Council will meet Thursday, Jan. 21, at 3 p.m. in the SCEOP office on East Steuben Street in Bath. The meeting is open to anyone interested in promoting nutrition awareness in the area.

New officers will be elected and the 1987 Nutrition Update will be evaluated at this meeting.

Help in Reading

The Wayland Seventh-day Adventist Church will subsidize professional reading tutoring for adults and children in the area. One-on-one tutoring by certified instructors will run from Feb. 1 through June 23. Call 367-2661 for further details.

Snowmobile Safety Class Scheduled

A safety course for young snowmobilers is scheduled Saturdays, Jan. 23 and 30, by the Livingston County Sheriff's Department.

The course will run from 9 a.m. until noon and those participating must attend each class to gain state certification. The course is open to those between the ages of 10 and 15 at no charge.

Young people may register by phoning the Sheriff's Department at 249-1212. This class will be limited to 25 students.

Eye Start Of Village Program

Rogers and Tenbrook Lumber Co. on Shults Street will probably be the first of several Wayland businesses to benefit from a program designed to stimulate the local economy.

Robert Radell of Phoenix Associates of Rochester, in charge of overseeing the $800,000 historic renovation project designed to revamp the village, reported a $30,000 economic development loan should be approved soon. Rogers and Tenbrook is planning a $100,000 expansion program.

Funding for the project is through federal Housing and Urban Development (HUD) grants, Wayland businesses and town and village governments.

Radell reported he is waiting for lawyers to complete an abstract on the property and expects the funds to be approved within the next month.

The lumber company is planning renovation of a warehouse to a retail store and construct some additions. Radell said the project has been approved by HUD.

Kevin Kilbourne, president of the firm, reported workers have started on the project renovating the interior. He said he expects the store will be open in April.

Kilbourne said the 35,000-square-foot project will allow the company to expand retail space for kitchen and bathroom fixtures and other hardware accessories.

Currently employing seven full-time and two part-time workers, Kilbourne said a person has been hired for the store and two more are to be taken on with completion of the project.
